

Analogy of the day: (not mine, but I liked it.)

standuponit
 standuponit
<https://standuponit.livejournal.com/2008-11-09> 23:14:00

MOOD: 😊 contemplative

Life is like solitaire. A lot of it is skill and persistence, but some of it is how the cards are dealt. You can't always win unless you cheat a little.

This looks like a good idea.

...

This.

...

Little guy's not bad.

Gotta teach RHex to smear.

9 comments

 kayjayoh

November 10 2008, 04:38:33 UTC COLLAPSE

...something to be played obsessively while one is supposed to be getting some work done? Oh wait, I guess that would be free cell. :)

 beatriceeagle

November 10 2008, 05:04:17 UTC Edited: November 10 2008, 05:04:56 UTC COLLAPSE

So God does play dice. Or cards, at least.

(Which is to say: I like the analogy. Whoever's it is.)

 nebula99

November 10 2008, 11:16:34 UTC COLLAPSE

I like that analogy a lot.

I shall be using it forthwith.

 themaskmaker

November 10 2008, 13:51:50 UTC

COLLAPSE

Yeah.

 Ometotchtli

November 10 2008, 15:34:31 UTC

COLLAPSE

Sooooo you're saying not everybody hacks the random number generator so all the shuffled decks are winnable?

...That's not, you know, wrong. Is it?

 trollcatz

November 10 2008, 16:09:10 UTC

COLLAPSE

The football players harass the computer club kids because they fear them.

 standuponit

November 10 2008, 16:30:28 UTC

COLLAPSE

That would be the "cheating" part.

 Ometotchtli

November 10 2008, 17:57:56 UTC

COLLAPSE

Oh, in that case, all good!

 colanthe_b

November 11 2008, 03:14:53 UTC

COLLAPSE

That's interestingly ambiguous. Thanks for the food for thought!